✦ HEATHER ROONEY would like to thank the Stevie Awards, hailed by the New York Post as “the business world’s own Oscars.” Out of 600 companies nationwide, her company, H2 Marketing, won Best New Company at the New York Awards Banquet in March 2007. Heather brings 15 years of marketing experience to her business, a national marketing and strategic planning firm specializing in home and community-based health care. “Beyond the practical value of home and community-based care,” she says, “H2 is passionate about this market niche because of the miracles that agencies perform every single day while caring for our most vulnerable populations.”

✦ TONY RAFEL is not just the boss in the courtroom, but he was also Boss of the Year last year, along with two colleagues at his law firm, Rafel Manville. Every year the National Association of Legal Support Professionals of Greater Seattle chooses one lawyer or team of lawyers for exemplary leadership and mentoring in the legal field. Rafel Manville advises and represents clients of all sizes, including Fortune 50 companies.

✦ Last year, Group Health CEO LAURA REHRMANN learned of a new, exciting development: She was the 2007 recipient of the Northwest Development Officers Professional Achievement Award. This is the highest recognition bestowed annually to a development professional in the Puget Sound Region. “Laura is a tireless advocate for philanthropy across our region and beyond,” writes Carol Walters, Group Health Communications Coordinator. She adds that Laura has cultivated the culture of philanthropy at Group Health, as well as serving on boards for the Red Cross of King and Kitsap counties, Leadership for Tomorrow, Seattle Rotary and the Association for Healthcare Philanthropy.
